

The Problem

For over 10,000 IT Projects surveyed by the Standish Group for their 2006 CHAOS Study, although projects are still improving, the following was revealed:

DIDEX is certified as a Global Registered Education Provider® (R.E.P.) by the Project Management Institute. Thus, students who complete DIDEX training courses receive PMI authorized Professional Development Units (PDUs) for Project Management Professionals (PMPs) and prospective PMPs.

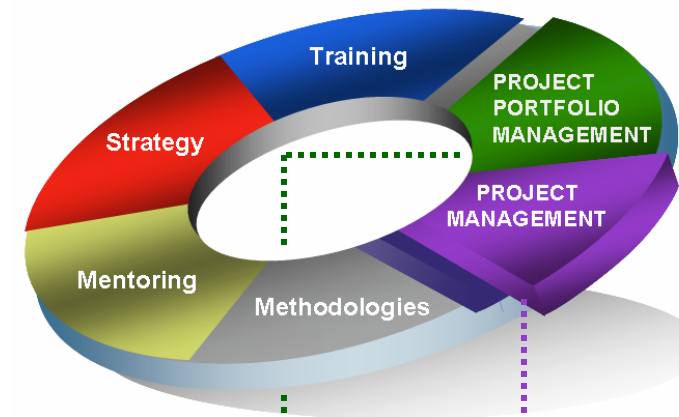

Project Management Training & Consultation

The Solution

- ❖ Discover Project Portfolio Management
 - Do the right projects
 - Prioritize to align with corporate strategies and objectives
 - Use a Project Management Office to more effectively track performance and enforce standards
 - Inventory and monitor all projects
 - Ensure senior leaders' effective sponsorship of all executed projects
- ❖ Implement Project Management discipline
 - Do the right projects right
 - Utilize a standardized methodology
 - Consistent metrics and reporting
 - Provide PM training & mentoring
 - Implement project control processes
 - Learn from failures and successes

The Challenge

Success in today's dynamic environment demands organizational agility – an ability to discern opportunities and barriers, and to change product and service delivery to take advantage of opportunities and overcome or avoid barriers. Fundamental to successful change is selecting and successfully completing the projects that best align with and support the firm's business objectives.

Effective project and project portfolio management are the essential skills, tools and processes for today's organizations. And a significant part of most organizations' budgets is invested in project work.

Thus, executives, stakeholders, project managers and project team members must be well trained, and proper processes must be in place to improve project delivery success rates.

Balancing the Triple Constraint

Balancing Scope, Schedule and Resources while keeping Risk down and still achieving the customer's desired level of Quality requires sound methodology, training, and follow-up mentoring.
